POINTS OF INTEREST

Gloucester, Cape Ann — First white man to visit its shores was Thorwald in 1004. Harbor called by Norsemen "Krossanes." Gosnold landed here in 1602 and found the place had been used as a base by Portuguese fishermen. In 1605 Champlain sailed by the Cape but did not land. The next year, September 1606, he entered the harbor which he named Le Beauport and made a map of it. Attacked by 200 Indians and sailed away the next day. In 1614 Capt. John Smith named it Cape Ann after Anne of Denmark, mother of King Charles I. First permanent settlement of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1623.

Stage Fort Park at westerly entrance of city. Site of settlement of Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1623-24. Tablet in commemoration of that fact placed on face of large boulder. Conant, Half Moon and Stone beaches.

Rafe's Chasm and Norman's Woe. Scene of "Wreck of the Hesperus." At Magnolia, Hesperus avenue. Fissure in solid rock cliff is 60 feet deep and 12 feet wide.

Mother Ann profile in Stone discovered in 1892 by Capt. William Thompson of Salem at tip end of Eastern Point. Dog Bar breakwater extends from a half mile long, completed in 1904 and extends from this point. On Eastern Point are many of the show residences of the North Shore. "The Ramparts" occupies site of Fort Independence.

Ten Pound Island in outer harbor; government fish hatchery thereon. Used as sheep pasture in early days. Five Pound Island in inner harbor; both so named for amounts in colonial money originally sold for.

Thompson's mountain, or Mt. Anne, West Gloucester, highest elevation on the Cape, 255 feet above sea level. Fine view ranging from Mt. Agamenticus on Maine coast to Wachusett Mountain, Bunker Hill Monument to Boston Bay. Tract given over as reservation in memory of Lawrence Minot; thickly wooded, favorite picnic resort; reached from New Way Lane. Nearby is Haskell's pond, from which city's water is secured.

Ravenswood Park, natural forest area extending from Fresh Water Cove to West Gloucester. Reached from Fresh Water Cove or the so-called Old Salem road, Western avenue. Mason Walton's cabin, "Hermit of Bond's Hill," on this road. Well worth frequenting.

Beacon or Governor's Hill, near center of city, from Washington street. Small reservation at top from which a fine view may be obtained.

Dogtown Commons, site of deserted Revolutionary settlement. Reached from Gee avenue, Riverdale. Fine example of boulder deposits of glacial period. "Whale's Jaw," best known of these boulders, at edge of common. Rocking stone, etc., now taken over by the city as a water shed.

Wharves skirting the water front, interesting as affording "close-up" of fish curing, etc.

Babson House, opposite Ellery House, erected by Col. John Low about 1745. Old slave pens in attic.

Main street, first known as Fore, afterwards as Front street. Principal business avenue. Laid out 1642. Middle street, paralleling Main, contains many old colonial houses and the Judith Sargent house, the grounds of which, originally extending to Main street have been restored.

On Middle street are the First Parish (Unitarian) Church, oldest in Gloucester; Independent Christian (Universalist) first Universalist society in America, church edifice erected 1805; St. John's Episcopal Church, Trinity Congregational Church and the First Baptist Church.

Sawyer Free Library and Reading Room, Middle street, adjoining Unitarian church. Interior fine specimen of colonial woodwork. Originally home of Thomas Sanders, merchant.

Old Town Hall Square, at junction of Middle and Washington streets. Beautiful American Legion Memorial building and monument on which was placed statue of Joan of Arc by Anna Vaughn Hyatt.

Fort Point, at western side of inner harbor, down Commercial street from Main, fortified in 1743. Now Italian quarter and rendezvous of fishermen of that nationality.

Drives around the Cape: Up Washington street, through Riverdale, past Annisquam, Bay View, Lanesville into Pigeon Cove, Rockport and completing the circuit to Gloucester. Almost a continuous ocean view, which was completed when the Bass Rocks-Land's End stretch was completed.

Beaches: Little Good Harbor and Long Beaches, between Bass Rocks and Land's End, Rockport. Wingaersheek Beach, West Gloucester, largest on Cape, two miles long, 600 feet deep at low tide; reached from Essex avenue, West Gloucester, down Concord street.

Quarries at Bay View and Pigeon Cove, among largest in country, near main highway.

Blynman canal, first cut in 1642 by Rev. Richard Blynman, at Western entrance of city.

Drives: "Little Heater," "Dark Hole" at West Gloucester.

Old Salem road, first highway from the town, blazed out in 1626, when part of the settlers went to Salem. Down Hesperus avenue (discontinued in 1892) to Salem. Name erroneously applied to Old Pest House road, leading through Ravenswood park from Western avenue.

"For this is the wise God's guiding
When the winds have broken the rose
When gales from the north are gliding
And the gates of summer close—
That the Lords of the Land go riding
And the horn on the upland blows."

SHALL WE LICENSE GAMBLING?

THE MANIA for gambling was never greater than at the present time. That is plainly evident. Inborn in the human race is the compelling urge to drink liquor and take a chance. Centuries ago it was recognized that the only way to regulate the liquor traffic—to a degree—was to license it and incidentally secure revenue for governmental purposes.

Perhaps all progress is based on the desire to take a chance which, in its last analysis, is gambling in its various forms. A man sets out in business. He takes a chance as to whether or not he will succeed. The Norsemen, Columbus and the early pioneer navigators all took a long chance when they set out on uncharted seas on their voyages of discovery. Mingled with this urge is the desire for adventure. The men who crossed the great American desert in the covered wagon, the men and women who pioneered the ocean and opened up the continent to civilization of the white men, who dared the perils of the great American desert in the covered wagon, who sailed in schooners from this port in '49 to the Golden Gate, all gambled their lives against chance and adventure and the race progressed.

From the earliest time we learn of the gambling instinct which balked at nothing. The Roman soldiers—so it is written—drew lots for the garments of the Master, and so on all through the ages.

In this country gambling has been more or less taboo although the straight-laced Puritans tolerated the practice. Lotteries were run to aid Harvard and in our own town in the early 1800's a road lottery provided a fund for a road improvement from the town to Freshwater Cove.

England, the most law-abiding country on the globe, has failed to cope with the problem and stands today the greatest gambling country on the globe. Peer and peasant alike go broke wagering their last penny on the chances of the Derby, Grand National and other races. The greatest legalized and systematized gambling enterprise in existence is Lloyds which will lay down its bet with you for anything, from the chance that your wife will give birth to twins to the result of the presidential election. The great insurance companies is another example. They bet you so much that you will or will not live up to a certain period or that your house or business will not be destroyed by fire.

But to get to our pressing present problem. Millions of dollars are annually sent to Ireland in the Irish sweepstakes based on the result of the great English horse racing events. Hundreds of thousands are sent into Canada into fake lottery enterprises. Bursting its bonds it has come out publicly with Beano which has enmeshed the nation—perhaps the greatest racketeering gambling enterprise in the history of the country, strongly entrenched. In our city some ten such open establishments, four run under the auspices of fraternal organizations, all classes from the Brown men composed of a certain element of native stock to the Bears and Beavers and Knights of Boondogglers defying all efforts of the law to prevent their operation.

This being the case there is a growing public sentiment that the time has come to keep some of this money that is sent abroad to feather the nests of foreign enterprises, in this country. And why not? Why may not the government of nation, state and municipality step in and regulate in a measure this evil—if such it may be termed? Why not the state set up the machinery of a Grand National or a Derby or whatever event it may elect, run off the enterprise in public here and keep the entire proceeds for public purposes, especially welfare and old age pensions or some needed improvement? Let the state go into the game and keep the entire take instead of licensing a private company which will give an insignificant stipend to "charity." For it is a well known fact that about a third of welfare cash in the various communities goes into

"THE PRINCESS COMES ACROSS"

"The King Steps Out," and "The Bride Walks Out" in the pictures of 1935 - 1936.

"One Rainy Afternoon" I had a telephone call from "Rose Marie" to tell me she would bring her knitting, and spend the afternoon. I knew she had a great "Desire" to talk over the rumors that were afloat about our friend "Poppy," known as "The Merry Widow."

When "Mr. Deeds Comes To Town" he is the "Informer" of what is going on. His latest news is that Poppy with her "Big, Brown Eyes" has captivated "Anthony Adverse." He hears "The Lady Consents" and they soon will be going on the "Florida Special" for a honeymoon, saying nothing to anyone. Sometimes "Brides Are Like That." Perhaps "It's Love Again," but I hope they "Don't Gamble With Love."

I recall some of her former love affairs, one especially comes to my mind. It was during the winter she spent in "San Francisco" with "Captain January" and his daughter, "Gentle Julia." He is "Everybody's Old Man" and he introduced Poppy to "Champagne Charlie," a "Tough Guy" and a "Dangerous" man.

"His Family Tree" wasn't much to boast of. He had been a "Wanderer In The Wastelands." "Every Saturday Night" he took her to "The Dancing Pirate." No "Early To Bed" for them.

Julia did everything she could to persuade Poppy to give him up and at last she succeeded. Julia was "A Small-Town Girl" and had every appearance of having led a "Cloistered" existence in "The Age of Innocence," but she was "Nobody's Fool" and her persistent efforts saved Poppy from a life of "Human Bondage" and Charlie soon took his place among "Forgotten Faces."

SONG OF CONTENTMENT

By ALEXANDER GARFIELD TUPPER

Ed. Note—Are we who are vacationing on this beautiful North Shore, where Nature offers us the wooded roadways, fields bright with blossoms and hills fresh and green, content with our being here? The Gloucester Poet draws a vivid picture of contentment, while walking down Fifth avenue in New York City, when Spring was awakening. A cricket was singing between two tall buildings—a rare occurrence in a big city like New York. The writer was inspired, with a bit of philosophy.

One day in May, on Fifth Avenue,
When the city dreamed of country lanes;
I stopped to hear a cricket's song
That came from between two high grey walls—
Amid confusion of the throng—
The sounds of horns and drilling cranes!
A cricket's song on Fifth Avenue,
Near two blades of grass and two feet of space—
O, where did you come from, you minstrel-elf,
Astray from your kin, in a spot remote?

Happy you are in your pent-up place,
Singing there by your tiny self!
I paused at length on Fifth Avenue
To hear a cricket's happy song
Near two blades of grass and two high grey
walls—
And I wondered if one of millions heard,
In that busy, bustling, heedless throng;
And his song was but a single word,
'Neath a tiny strip of Heaven's blue,
Two blades of grass and a balmy air;
I understood what his chirping meant—
It was only a word, but so strangely true—
He chirped content, content, content!

Two Hundred Fifty Year Old Question of Ownership Appears Headed For Settlement in Courts

THE SCHOONER "ELIZABETH HOWARD" THE "WHITE LADYE" OF THE FISHING FLEET

Winner of the Col. John Wing Prentiss Cup and second place in the Tercenary Anniversary Fisherman's Race. Struck on Porter's island, N.S., Nov. 27 1923, and was a total loss. Won second place by 50 seconds, the schooner "Henry Ford" being the winner. Sailed on that occasion by Ben Pine (insert). The writer has seen and sailed in them all from the time of the first Fisherman's race Fast Day, 1887, and to his mind she was the fastest and most representative Gloucester fishing schooner ever launched. Easily five minutes speedier than when sailed on this occasion. A Photograph and not a painting.

What is considered by far the most important land title controversy along the Northern New England seaboard—a controversy which has been in the mulling for the past 15 years—is now apparently bound for a definite decision in the courts.

It involves title to the uplands and all the Little Good Harbor Beach to low-water mark, this beach, as is well known, being one of the finest along the North Atlantic shore.

For more than 250 years it remained so valueless that no one claimed title to it. Early in the town's history—Gloucester being then all Cape Ann—the wooded land from the tip end of Eastern Point to what is known as Cape Hedge, in Rockport, was set off as common land for wood-cutting. In those days a good business was done in supplying Boston with firewood—no trees growing on what is now Boston territory. So the men of Gloucester fished in the Summer and in the Fall took their cured fish by boat to Virginia and the South and bartered it for the goods of that section. In the Winter they cut this wood and let it dry. The next Fall, after returning from the South, they loaded their wood on their fishing boats and disposed of it in Boston. So that's the history of it.

Inquiry at the assessors' office reveals the fact that no one assumed ownership until 1901 when several persons claimed title and desired to pay taxes and were accommodated by the assessors. The land then had begun to assume a value.

About 1920 the Souther Land Trust claimed title which was resisted by the city. Proceedings were instituted by the trust in the Land Court but the late city engineer, John H. Griffin, had the case thoroughly prepared. On the day of the trial no one appeared in behalf of the petitioners except to ask for further time for preparation and the case never came to trial and apparently was dropped.

Several years before that, however, a question came up as to whether there was any right of public way to the beach and the case was taken to the Land Court, Judge Davis deciding that the records showed that there was such a way but so obscurely defined that he could not indicate the exact locality. Accordingly in handing down his decree he left it to the city to decide. The logical approach being at the foot of Witham street the city decreed that this road was an extension of Witham street and so laid it out and it has been used as such for the past 20 years without protest.

Recently the Shepherd property, a farmland extending seaward from Eastern avenue, has come into possession of George W. Nugent, who claims that the beach is his to low-water mark and he proceeded to maintain his title. He gave legal notice to the city last year not to restore the bridge over the little salt water creek which makes in on the western end at low tide and the city met the challenge aggressively by ordering the bridge rebuilt and established as a part of the public highway to the beach and it has been maintained as such as in the past.

Last year the city in order to correct abuses which had arisen, mainly from the coming of outsiders, established restrictive parking rules, involving a fee from outsiders the object being to keep out what was termed the undesirable element. This year it has again resumed practice which it is asserted has worked well as a law and order remedial agency on the beach.

Then Mr. Nugent made a move in law through his counsel, William G. Clark, and sought an injunction on two points, first that the city be restrained from imposing any parking fee and secondly restrained from allowing sand to be removed from the beach.

The decision handed down by Judge Smith of the Land Court is considered a victory for the city by Solicitor Carleton Wonson who says the main contention of the city empowering it to maintain parking laws is essentially its whole case. As to taking the sand he said the city was not especially interested in that phase of the matter at the present time.

PRESENT AND PAST—A GRAHAM BELL

Gilbert Tucker Margeson, noted marine painter, has in his possession a letter which he values highly. This epistle was written by Alexander Graham Bell and is one of appreciation. It follows:

Pigeon Cove,
Aug. 19, 1881.

My dear sir:

I must thank you very sincerely for all the trouble you have taken with the picture of our little child. The picture is, I think, as satisfactory a one as could be made under the circumstances.

Please let me know how much we are in your debt—and oblige,

Yours very sincerely,

Alexander Graham Bell.

The story surrounding this letter is most interesting.

At that time, Mr. Margeson was only a student of painting, doing only work that brought no return. Mr. Bell heard of him and sent his servant to ask him to paint the portrait of his child. Believing himself incapable, he refused for that reason. A short time later Mr. Bell rode to the painter's home with a span of horses. He appeared very prosperous. He bent his powers of persuasion upon Mr. Margeson and finally convinced him that he should undertake the assignment.

The artist then painted the picture under a great deal of difficulty. The tragedy of this assignment was that the child was dead, had been dead when born. This was Mr. Margeson's first work for remuneration. At that time Mr. Bell would undoubtedly given the artist telephone stocks in appreciation.

Mr. Margeson is still a very active painter and very well known. His work is exhibited at his Stone Studio on Atlantic avenue, Rockport.

NORTH SHORE PARTIES

A number of dinners are being given preceding the costume dance next Saturday evening, Aug. 22, at the Essex County Club, and one of the largest will be that at which Miss Nancy Leiter is entertaining several friends from Washington, D. C., as well as many along the North Shore.

Among the guests will be Miss Anne Ayer, Miss Hope Distler, Miss Nancy Cochrane, Miss Frances Sortwell, Miss Elizabeth McKean, Miss Marion McKean, Miss Elise and Miss Anne Sortwell, Miss Alice Burrage, Miss Virginia Ward and Miss Eleanor Swift.

The guests from Washington will include Miss Margot Haynes, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Angelica Lloyd, Edward B. McLean, Demarest Lloyd, Jr., and Stephen Elkins. Among the young men from about the Shore invited are Frederick Ayer, Jr., Paul Fitzpatrick Fox and Gerald Gleason Fox; George Clements, Peter Langmaid, Francis Burrage Chalifoux and George von L. Meyer, Jr.

Others will be Edward Hyde Cox, Eliot Bacon, Henry Russell, Allen Jenkins, C. Carson Febiger 2d, Henry Fuller, John Augustus Griswold and William and John Wood.

Miss Kate Talbot and her brother, C. Meredith Talbot, will also be hosts at dinner that evening, at the Magnolia house, "Normandie" of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Talbot.

Farewell Party

As they are shortly to move their Lares and Penates to the United States embassy in Rome, the newly appointed Ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. William Phillips will entertain a large number of old friends at their Beverly house, "Highover," on Monday evening, Sept. 7, in a gesture of farewell for an indefinite period of time. Friends of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Phillips, and their sons, Drayton and William Phillips, Jr., will also be there as most of the family will accompany their parents abroad shortly afterwards, though, in all probability the younger members, Christopher, Miss Anne and Miss Caroline Phillips, will remain in this country at school, visiting in Italy during their vacations.

On to Newport

Miss Natalie Folsom is leaving on Tuesday to spend several days in Newport with Miss Adelaide Whitehouse and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fitz Hugh Whitehouse, at "Stone Villa." Miss Whitehouse won the contest run in Newport during most of July, for the prettiest girl, the results having been read out at the fair there last week.

TO A LITTLE DOG

You're such a helpless little chap,
Not even worth your keep;
And yet you've planted in my heart
A love that's strong and deep.

A little bunch of hair and burrs,
You have no pedigree;
I don't know why you've come to mean
So very much to me.

You're not the sort to rescue me
If I were nearly drowned.
You wouldn't bark a warning word
If smoke or flames you found.

You can not drive away the tramps
That to our door-yard roam.
You don't know how to tend the cows,
Nor drive the chickens home.

But let me take your tangled paw,
And I'll softly croon to you,
"I don't know why I love you,
But I do-o-oo!"

—GRACE KNOWLTON PARKER.

Rockport.

WILLOWS AND MILL COLONY

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Tushin and daughter June and Mrs. Nathan Dewing, all of Washington, are spending the summer months in the Mill colony.

Occupying the Drugan cottage for the season is Miss Greta Hanson of Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reblin, formerly of Lynn and Gloucester, have opened their cottage for another season.

From Cambridge comes Mrs. Elizabeth Mason of Cambridge to spend another season in the Mill colony.

Also from Cambridge is the J. J. Watson family returning to the Mill colony for another season.

Mr. William G. Brown and daughter, Miss Margaret Brown, of Gloucester, have opened their cottage for the summer.

EASTERN POINT

A picturesque sight on the break-water line—although some of our pacifist friends may not agree—were the two battle cruisers of our far-flung navy. They are of the latest type of naval construction, spoon-bowed, and are an improvement over former hull designs inasmuch as the freeboard is perceptibly lowered thereby affording a much lessened target to the enemy. Conspicuous is the absence of service World War service stripes on the crew, many of whom are westerners, although some with two hash marks were seen, reminding service men that more than eighteen years have passed since the close of the war and that some of these young men may not have been born at the opening of that great cataclysm. Mostly a high-grade type of men before the mast—high school or early college men. I noted a chief boatswain—really the keystone man of the ship in the old days—men who knew marline-spike seamanship and practical navigation and seamanship down to the last dot—who from his pale student-like face might have been an incipient college professor—not the horny-handed hard-boiled salt who had sailed the seven-seas the idol of the newly-taken on boys on their first cruise, who with an art gallery of beauties and patriotic emblems adorning his breast with a quid of tobacco bulging out the cheek instructed the admiring youths in the intricacies of knots and rope fancy work, etcetera. When a skipper in the navy had this type of man aboard he felt safe for he was assured that everything was ship-shape and Bristol fashion. No man on the ship had the respect and confidence of the quarter deck than this fast disappearing type. Gloucester furnished a large contingent of these old sea-dogs in every struggle on the sea up to and including the Great war. A fast disappearing type.

To our summer visitors, especially from inland, these ships are a constant wonder and fascination and a great asset in attracting these people to our shores.

EAST GLOUCESTER

Festivity at the Casino

A costume party of the Gay Nineties was given at the Hawthorne Inn Casino last Saturday night, August 15 in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the Inn. Many beautiful costumes were worn by the old guests of the Inn. Among them, there was a gown worn at President McKinley's Inaugural Ball, and it was worn at this affair by Mrs. R. C. Taylor of New York. She also wore the gown on the former occasion. Mrs. Charles E. Claggett of Louisville, Kentucky, wore a gown that was also worn by her mother at the ball given for the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia at Louisville. Mrs. Arthur Carpenter wore a gown of her mothers, that was also worn in the Gay Nineties. Mrs. William Wheelwright and Mrs. Robert Lewis dressed as the White Sisters in shirtwaist costumes of the period.

There was a Euchre tournament during the evening. There were also many stage sketches of the Gay Nineties' period and many old-fashioned songs of that period were sung. There were about four hundred people in attendance, who all listened to Mayor Friend as he made the opening address. Mrs. Harry Elger won first prize for the longest consecutive attendance at the Inn. She has returned annually for the last thirty-eight years.

Miss Mona Gill of Washington, D. C. was the happy recipient of the first prize at the Tuesday bridge party at the Hotel Rockaway. Although the season is drawing to a close, the Hotel Rockaway is still in full swing, keeping its guests entertained and happy. Bridge parties are flourishing, tennis playing is very popular and of course the Saturday evening dances are always "tops." Much credit is given to Mr. and Mrs. William A. Publicover, proprietors of the Hotel Rockaway, for their successful ability in pleasing their guests.

Carroll Lewis Maxcy, Morris Professor of Rhetoric, emeritus at Williams College, died early Sunday morning, August 9, at his home. He was 71. Prof. Maxcy was a graduate of Williams in 1887 and a member of its faculty for thirty-seven years. Born in Norristown, Pa., Mr. Maxcy entered Williams in 1883, becoming principal of Troy Academy after graduation. In 1895 he married Miss Louise Hawley of Troy, N. Y. In 1898 he was appointed Professor of English at Williams and three years later Morris Professor. He was a summer resident of Gloucester for several years, making his home at the Fairview. His passing will be regretted by all who knew him. He is survived by his widow.

BASS ROCKS

Bass Rocks the Place for Me

By Dr. Silas Hibbard Ayer

I've travelled east,
I've travelled west,
I've lived in many a clime.
But, east or west,
The place that's best
Is right here ev'ry time.

The beach, the waves,
The misbehaves,
The strollers on the sand;
The boys and girls
Deprived of curls,
Parade, yes, hand in hand.

And tennis, too,
For me and you;
My! How the things do hum!
As up the beach,
With some young peach,
Cavorts the smiling GUM.

Your hand he shakes
Until it quakes,
And then most au-di-blee,
He stops and yells
Midst ocean swells,
BASS ROCKS' THE PLACE
FOR ME.

Chorus

Bass Rocks' the place for me;
I know you'll all agree;
We congregate
Oft times 'till late,
'Tis there we are scot free.
We rise, we bathe,
We smoke, we shave,
We're happy as can be.
Yes, midst the rocks
With gorgeous frocks,
BASS ROCKS' THE PLACE
FOR ME.

ANNISQUAM

The Annual Fair of Annisquam held Wednesday, Aug. 12, at the Village Hall was unusually successful, the summer colonists coming out in large number to assist in the object for which the fair was held, namely, the fund for the Village church. The flower display, the delicately designed linens, the candy and cake table and the touch of humor involved in the grab box all contributed to the gaiety of the occasion. Much credit for the success of the afternoon is given Mrs. Walter E. Olson, chairman of the general committee and her assistants, Mrs. Almon Davis in charge of the Sewing Bee table; Mrs. Charles E. Cunningham the Sewing Circle table; Mrs. William H. Ricker, the flower display table; Mrs. Ernest Griffin, candy; Mrs. Myles Rodeheaver, grubs; Mrs. Charles Heberle, cake and Mrs. Adam Dumtra, tea.

MILADY GOES SHOPPING

Gloucester, Mass.

Dear Eloise,

Mrs. Marsh has done it again! While driving over town the other day, she took it into her head to go "sailing" up a one-way street (the wrong way). You can imagine the consequences. She was proceeding along very smoothly when she met in a collision with a car coming down. No one was seriously injured, but for a time we thought Mrs. Marsh would be spending a few days in jail. However, she was saved from this ill fate by Mr. Marsh's influence.

Joan and I have been doing a little bartering—Joan went into the Gas and Electric Co. and saw an electric Ironer which she thought she'd like to have. She had already bought an electric iron, so I purchased it from her for my own use. With Joan's Ironer, ironing ceases to be drudgery—becomes a relaxation. She sits comfortably in her chair, guides the clothes effortlessly—and this modern Ironer does all the work. It's portable—can be rolled into any room.

For the past few days I have been staying at Joan's house helping her to get started with her housekeeping. She has become quite efficient in taking care of her Coolerator. She is very particular about the arrangement of food in it (I guess the gossipers must have been wrong—she is nothing like her mother). Just at present Joan is planning an elaborate housewarming for tomorrow evening. She is exceptionally clever at planning this sort of thing. It's going to be quite an affair—of course, at first the guests will inspect the house. After that, Joan has decided to serve a Barbecue Steak Dinner, and then the evening will be reserved for entertainment. Joan and I have "hatched up" between us a most unique Treasure Hunt. We have spent the entire afternoon in planting the clues which will take the party around the Cape all in vain, for the treasure will be hidden right near the house they started from. Now, Eloise, I think I'll save the rest of the letter until after tomorrow evening, because I know you'll be anxious to hear all about the party.

* * * * *

I'm so excited, I don't know where to begin! Yesterday morning we went to the First National Store to buy the edibles for the big affair. Eloise, I thought Joan was going to buy about everything in the store.

Then we dashed down to Mimi's to buy a dinner gown—You know, we wanted to look our loveliest! Joan's was a black net with a brilliantly flowered jacket. I couldn't wear anything so dark as that, so I bought a mousseline de soie dress in a pastel shade of green.

Our next mad dash was to L. E. Andrews to get some cocktail glasses. Joan didn't have enough, and as luck would have it, we found another set exactly like the last one we bought—so everything matched beautifully. (We have borrowed Charles' set for the evening.)

By this time we were "flat broke," so we rushed to the banks, I to the Gloucester National Bank and Joan to the Cape Ann National Bank. When we came out of the banks, we found we wouldn't have time to prepare lunch as we had so much else to do. To remedy this, Joan called Chris and suggested that he and Charles come over and take us to lunch. Fifteen minutes later we met them in front of Stage Coach Inn. The poor dears were about famished waiting for us to come home with lunch. Consequently, when we met them they were a bit peeved, but lunch cheered them and everyone was satisfied again.

Chris and Charles had not planned anything for the afternoon. Joan and I certainly didn't want them around, because you know what men are when one is busy! Joan told them about her delightful tour of inspection at Gorton's. We finally convinced them to go—so we were rid of them for the afternoon.

Joan had to arrange bouquets, furniture, and dust up a bit. But I just had to remember that I was a private secretary, and went to attend to Mr. Marsh's affairs. I had to write a letter to the Gloucester Co-operative Bank, get Hornblower & Weeks on the phone for Mr. Marsh, and then answer some more personal letters for him. I completed all this just in time to dress for the party.

And now for the party!—the guests thought the house just too divine, and dinner proved to be just as nice. The Treasure Hunt was a barrel of fun. There were four persons in each car, and five cars in all. Of course, Joan and I could not participate in the hunt as we knew where the things were hidden. But we had a grand time watching the others trying to straighten out their clues. Our trip around the Cape took us past the Rendez-Vous. Charles and I and the couple we were with stopped to have a few dances—you know how a few leads to many. We ended up by spending a great part of the evening there. When we finally reached home, the rest were already there waiting patiently for us. So we explained our absence (to cover up our time at the Rendez-Vous) telling we unfortunately had a flat tire. We questioned the guests as to who had won the treasure—of all things—it was Carol Robbins, and imagine her chagrin when she received a nice basket of vegetables. Oh, Eloise, it was a wonderful evening. As Charles and I walked over to the house, he remarked on the nice time he had had, and when I smiled in agreement, he thoughtfully gazed into my eyes, and asked me if buying lottery tickets and chances on the horse races.

This thing should be met squarely face to face. It cannot be suppressed any more than the tides may be made static. Prohibitory laws against them are as King Canute sitting on his throne at low water mark and bid the incoming flood to stay its course. Only one exception to this, that old chap who we are told bade the sun to stay set in the heavens—believe it or not Bob Ripley.

As one of our presidents phrased it: "It's a condition and not a theory that confronts us." All such problems must be compromised with.

A few days ago it was published in a Boston daily that the official take—betting at horse (pari-mutuels) and dog racing courses in this state aggregated $44,456,093, some $2,000,000 of which went to state charities—old age pensions and the like we presume. Think of that, nearly $43,000,000 to the private promoters—minus what went to the minority who guessed right on the results—let us say—and we are well within bounds—that at least $30,000,000 went to a group of insiders and but $2,000,000 to charity.

Now if this entire amount were turned over to welfare, state, nation and city would be relieved of an onerous burden. Like it or not this matter must be faced in a practical common-sense manner. We believe it will be, the only doubt being that a strong effort will be made to vest the enterprise in a private corporation. Undoubtedly there will be graft if such regulation is decreed but it would be nothing as compared to the present ratio of thirty million to two million. The Shore has no brief for gambling. It is unalterably and absolutely opposed to it on principle. But you might as well attempt to dam the Mississippi or Amazon at their mouths. It's a suckers' game, but the name of Barnum—who was eternally right—will go ringing down the ages in his appraisal that one is born every minute. And it pervades all classes.

The most popular literature at present is tipster sheets from the stock market down to the crap game. Years ago an enterprising individual opened a stock tipster sheet advertising in the "Evening Sun." He had two offices—one issued "bull" predictions, the other "bear" prognostications. Apparently two different crowds. "Wagner Warns" was the bear topline while the bullish ad predicted an upturn. Thus the adventurer, like the darkey's fish trap with mouths set up and down stream, "caught 'em comin' and gwine." Gloucester turned out the big glorified tipster of the cocaine decade. Literally millions in it.

ALLEGRA IS WINNER IN THE TRIANGLE CLASS

ROCKPORT, Aug. 15—A stiff southwest wind prevailed at Sandy Bay this afternoon, but as this makes for under a lee condition the water was comparatively smooth. In the Triangles the Allegra had the situation in fair control from the getaway. It was the same story in the Sandy Bay Class with Jolo in the stellar role. The summary:

ANNISQUAM—AUG. 15 AND 16

Week-end racing conditions at Annisquam were ideal. Saturday saw some rough water sailing in a stiff west northwest breeze, giving the heavy weather boats the opportunity they have been waiting for, while yesterday a moderate northwest wind and smooth water were on tap.

For a time on Saturday it looked as if the judges might call the race off and several of the skippers thought such to be the fact, including Capt. Paul Woodbury of the Flamingo who was caught napping and lost at least three minutes at the start which probably cost him the race.

Yesterday's course was triangular, Plum Cove, outer mark and home for the birds. Plum Cove, inner mark and home for the fishes. In the bird class at Plum Cove, Nordie and Wren rounded practically on even terms. On the beat, Wren and Flamingo stood out in the bay to port while the rest went to starboard. When the two groups converged, Wren and Flamingo were way behind. On the run, Nordie and Wren were virtually on even terms. The battle continued into the river with Don Howes in Nordie being equal to the occasion and winning by three seconds.

SAN SOUCI IN RACE FOR TITLE

Enters for Rochester, N. Y.,
Championship Event

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 16—The Eastern Point fleet was favored with a smart breeze from the south today. Four classes got away on the customary triangle course.

In the 20s Popinjay reversed the decision of yesterday, it being a close stern chase for Majola which could not muscle out the necessary 19 seconds.

Injun repeated in the triangles. Rockport registered again in the star interclub series, Maidee III displacing her fellow townsman, the San Souci.

The point standing in this series is San Souci, 38.75; Maidee, 33.25; Saturn, 28; Star of India, 24; Midge, 11.19; California, 13; Three Star, 12; Eclipse, 11; Comet, 9; Ara, 7.25.

San Souci will be an entrant at the races at Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 1-3, for the world championship in the class. The summary:

Save the Constitution

The above spirited reproduction from an oil painting by Gilbert T. Margeson of Rockport, which hangs on the walls of Congress, is especially apropos at this time having been thrust into prominence by the proposition to remove the historic craft from her natural repository at the Charlestown navy yard to Washington and the political onslaughts on the ark of the covenant of American Liberty — the Constitution adopted by the Fathers of the Republic. It represents the historic frigate, Capt. Isaac Hull, in action with the British ship of war "Guerriere," Capt. Dacres, off the New England coast Aug. 18, 1812—one of the major sea-combats in World history coming at a time when disaster and defeat had disheartened the land forces. Purchased by Congress as the most stirring and historically correct representation of that immortal victory. Manned by New England seamen who more than held their own with the world's most gallant sea fighters.

Nor is this the first time the "Constitution" was saved by Gloucester fishermen. We quote from Pringle's History of Gloucester—pages 116-117—"Always patriotic the men of Gloucester, nearly all fishermen, enrolled in Co. G, 8th. Mass. regiment, responded to Pres. Lincoln's call for three months' volunteers (April 16, 1861) to suppress the rebellion.

"When the Eighth arrived in Philadelphia they heard news of the firing on our troops in the streets of Baltimore. Volunteers were called for—a sergeant and nineteen men, nearly two-thirds of the required number were selected. Reaching Annapolis they found the "Constitution" aground in the harbor—and they worked hours hoisting the cannon out before any other troops came on board and they did the real hard work as sailors, etc." Capt. Berry of the "Constitution" writes: "The officers commanding the gun division spoke with great praise of the willingness and efficiency of your men and I had occasion to notice them aloft in reefing, etc."
